‘I offer both virtual /remote instruction and in-person art lessons to students of all ages and abilities.

I teach drawing and painting in the following mediums:
oil, acrylic, watercolor, pastel, pen & ink,
charcoal and graphite.’

‘Students are encouraged to follow their own muse and choose subjects and mediums that inspire and interest them most while I assist and instruct each student individually.

My teaching style is described as gentle coaching.’

Remote/Virtual Art Lessons

During appointed class times, I review photos of each student’s artwork and respond with advice and demonstrations (if needed) on how to solve the problems within the painting or drawing. I will also telephone the student during class time if further clarification is needed on an issue.

What Students Are Saying

“I don’t know how he does it but he does: Keith Klein’s near magical gift of fostering a student’s own ability to paint successfully in the present moment while continuing to progress and improve translates beyond in-studio classes to individual on-line instruction. Texting makes it simple to send photos of the work along with questions both general and specific. His insightful instruction never fails to guide me to a better result.” -Laura Lander

In Person Lessons

I engage with each student in the classroom when they need me to advise and assist them. Artists are very visual people and I find demonstrating techniques that will solve particular issues to be highly effective.

What Students Are Saying

“Keith is an inspiration! He meets every student at the point of their need, Working with both beginners and advanced students, he is able to mentor them in the artistic direction they choose. He gives solid technical instruction while preserving the individuality of the student.” -Doug Laws

“Keith helped me to realize my inner talents, while teaching me new techniques and offering solutions to challenging areas in my work. My creativity, self-confidence, and love of art and life have flourished! I truly feel as though I have been reborn. -Sarah Dailey
